Seriously Hurt By Skidding Auto

Husband Receives Broken Jaw, Wife Sustains Compound Fracture of Leg, Others Injured Near Catskill Sunday.

Peter J. Laundry of 32 Gill street is in a critical condition at the Benedictine Hospital as a result of an accident about 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the state road between Catskill and Athens. Mr. Laundry has four teeth knocked out, his lower lip turned around, a lacerated tongue, his jaw broken diagonally to the left and the mucous membrane is torn from the roof of his mouth.

The Laundry light six Studebaker touring car was being driven by Mr. Laundry north along the Albany road just out of Catskill. In the car were Mr. and Mrs. Laundry and son, Frederick, and their daughter, Mrs. McGowan and, her husband. The party were on their way to Athens. In endeavoring to make room for a car coming in the opposite direction Mr. Laundry turned his car to the right. As he did so the car struck low at the side of the road

Immediately after the accident Frederick Laundry who escaped unhurt, rushed to the nearest farmhouse and 'phoned to the Benedictine Hospital in this city for an ambulance. Mr. McGowan, who sustained a badly sprained ankle, had

Mrs. McGowan has severe lacerations about the head and shoulders and an upper tooth gone but escaped without any broken bones. She and Mr. McGowan were taken in a Ford car to Dr. Goodrich's office.

When the ambulance arrived Mr. and Mrs. Laundry were taken to the Benedictine Hospital where they will be forced to stay for some time. Mrs. Laundry is suffering intense pain from a compound comminuted fracture of the left leg, according to Dr. John G. O'Leary who with Dr. William J. O'Leary and Dr. John Larkin are caring for the patient.

The whole front of the Studebaker car was smashed. It was towed into the garage of the Van Motor Company of this city.

Germany Raises Cry of "Cheated"

Berlin, Dec. 29.—Storm signals are flashing over the European horizon with ever increasing intensity today. The spirit of mutual distrust and hate which seemed buried during the short pacifist period up to the time of Premier MacDonald's defeat in England, has leaped into full flame.

day by day, since the first inking at Cologne would not be evacuated January 10, the German internationalists against the Allies have been leading into greater solidarity. The keynote of the widespread German outcry is:

"We have been cheated."

The Zeit, former Chancellor Stresemann's newspaper, prints a sensational statement on the interallied military control commission, whose report that Germany was making and storing arms far above the quota allowed by the Versailles treaty brought the adverse Cologne decision of the ambassadors' council. "Unreasonable, high handed and insulting," concludes the paper.

conduct," "Childish interference with machines of peace," and "reactionism" are among charges hurled by the Zeit.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 29, 1924.

If the legislators get to work early and get through early they will be doing something to meet with the approval of the people. There is a general impression that a lot of time is wasted. That is not wholly accurate because there is a tremendous measure of detail to be gone over. But the legislators can speed up things considerably, and this was proved a few years since when adjournment was taken on March 17. Long drawn-out sessions become tiresome.

Governor "Ma" Ferguson is reported to be much interested in her coming inaugural ball, and naturally she would be. It is stated that Austin will entertain 100,000 visitors and that 7,500 persons have been formally invited to the inaugural ceremony. The Senate Chamber will be the scene of the ball and all Texans who can will of course be pleased to "shake a foot" on an occasion so historic and unprecedented. There is speculation as to who will have the honor of leading the elected lady out, but should a Governor do less than lead the chosen and perhaps blushing gentleman out on the ball room floor?

MODERN PORTRAIT PAINTING.

In connection with the arrival of Zuloaga the New York World's remarks leave the impression that our highbrows of art are likely to regard the famed Spanish painter as "no artist at all" because he is "utterly oblivious to things as they ought to be" and has the bad taste to paint things as they are. The New York Times, on the other hand, appears to have received information that Zuloaga is a highbrow himself, that he will not condescend to paint things as they are and insists on painting them as they "ought to be," for, paraphrasing Zuloaga's own remarks, the Times says: "A portrait by an artist of talent is not a portrait. Uninstructed sitters think that 'there must be the kind of mouth they have,' that their eyes 'must be of such and such expression.' They think the resemblance must be such that 'the whole family will get together and be glad about it.' Nothing of the sort. The artist deals only in the fluent line, the apt massing and composition of colors."

All this may be very fine for the portrait painter of the new school, but it is pretty hard on the sitter, who sometimes is almost ready to drop dead when he sees the thing that is supposed to be himself. His ordinary friends mourn, but his "artistic" friends applaud, showing what seems to him a strange readiness to call black white and pronounce ugliness rare beauty. Naturally he is bewildered, but of one thing he is sure: he wishes that he spent his money on a less highbrow artist who would have given him a fairly good likeness as well as a "portrait." Cases are reported of recent portrait painting, with small coloring changes of the "artistic" claiming wonders of beauty in what to the majority is distinctly misshapen and forbiddingly ugly.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLING.

It is said that the cross-word puzzle has relegated ordinary to the limbo of forgotten things, which is no great calamity; that it has hurt the book trade (except the sale of dictionaries); that it has not only taken people away from bridge and golf but cut down auto-driving for pleasure, which latter pedestrians will regard as a public blessing; and that it divides empire even with radio and the movies, which need not be a source of national regret. As to its more serious damage, we read that it has not only caused neglect of imperative duties in families but has thrown its victims out of work. As an example of the latter, we note a letter to a metropolitan Journal from a cross-word fan who says he tramped upon time belonging to his boss until he lost his job and now is unable to support his family, therefore instead of cutting himself a fool, he curses the inventor of the cross-word puzzle.

And yet—and yet, given sanity and temperance, cross-word puzzling is the least harmful and the most beneficial of the popular games to date. It gives definite aim to the mind, stimulates the brain, and—for empty chatter, sharpens the wit, gives more accuracy in the choice and use of words, and makes much needed contributions to a meager and barren vocabulary. Thanks to the cross-word puzzle, many persons formerly leaning helplessly upon a small stock of slang phrases doing duty on every occasion, are now master of at least some few words of a rich language and can express themselves more forcibly as well as more intelligibly.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

IS IT ALWAYS WISE TO ROUGH IT?

I am sometimes asked why physicians send their patients to a sanatorium when lung trouble is suspected. Instead of to some climate where they can live outdoors.

They quite naturally ask the question "Isn't the outdoor life the most important part in the treatment of lung conditions?"

Now outdoor life is the big factor in the treatment, and where one can get to a climate where they can live outdoors all the time, then they are fortunate indeed.

But there is one point that is overlooked, and that is that when a patient finds it necessary to consult his physician, and the physician advises treatment for a lung condition, then you can be certain that the condition has existed for some time.

The chap has likely been feeling a bit "rundown". He has been feeling "tired" all the time, and the little cough has been hanging on perhaps for months.

Now what does he need more than anything else? Hard rough work in the outdoors with all kinds of coarse food, improperly cooked?

No! His greatest need first of all is "rest". And this should be rest in bed at first. Rest of body and rest of mind. You can readily guess that with the loss of weight, loss of appetite, an evening temperature, and so forth, and despite all this, going about his work, and attempting to do the physical and mental things necessary therein, that the drain on his energies has been tremendous.

And to this that one other thing "worry", and the picture is complete.

And so in the sanatorium now, the great majority of the patients have private rooms, so that rest is obtained.

After the condition improves, and the temperature becomes normal, he is allowed to get out for a short walk.

In the meantime, the best of food, well cooked, has arrested the loss in weight.

It is when he has reached this stage that he can go to live in the great outdoors in safety.

Why? Because the sanatorium has taught him how to live properly. This knowledge is his safety ever afterwards.

POULTRY FACTS

RAISE POULTRY FEED BY HAVING TWO LOTS

When open range is not available and hens must be confined, we recommend the division of the hen yard into two lots, so that green food can be grown on one side while the other patch is being grazed. As soon as the green stuff is two or three inches high the hens may be turned on it, while the other lot may be prepared and sowed again. This plan provides plenty of green, succulent feed throughout the year for the average farm flock. Sooner or later we will have two or more such lots fenced in on our farms, with the hen house so placed with reference to convenience for the caretaker. Lots containing an acre or more, divided by fences, and large enough to provide considerable pasturage for the family cow and a growing heifer are very desirable for growing farm poultry. The pigs should not be turned in, however, for as a rule pigs and chickens do not go well together.

There are times when the poultry do some harm to some of the crops at or soon after planting time, but after they have a good start this is not very often the case. Take corn, for instance, after it is a foot high and from then on it is hard to find a better run for poultry. They help work the crop, destroy insects, and the corn in turn furnishes the much-needed shade. Hawks, by the way, can do little harm to birds on range in a corn field.

The green crops to be grown should be suited to local conditions as well as to the proper time to plant in order to have a succession of green crops throughout the year.

There are times when these lots should not be grazed too closely, but allowed to get a fresh start, so here is where the other yard comes in play. Birds can be shifted from one to the other, thus saving both pasture lots much longer.

Thickly sown crops furnish succulent feed and summer shade.

From April 1 to July 1 on growing yard 1—Oats, chard or lettuce, clover or vetch, sunflowers, cowpeas, rape. For feeding purposes on yard 2—Winter rye, winter vetch, sweet clover and various other green clover crops.

From July 1 to October 1 the oats, chard and lettuce, clover and vetch, cowpeas and rape on yard 1 may be fed, while buckwheat, dwarf Essex rape and flat turnips are grown on yard 2.

From October 1 to April 1 the growing crops on yard 1 should consist of oats, winter rye, winter vetch, sweet clover and crimson clover, while at the same time yard 2 could be growing buckwheat, dwarf Essex rape, flat turnips and soy beans.

We, in this state, are blessed with a climate that makes it possible to have some green pasturage crop growing at all seasons. It is one of the very best and cheapest foods for our poultry as well as other live stock.

Proper Plan of Packing Will Prevent Breakage

Careful packing prevents breakage in market eggs. The poultry department of the New Jersey experiment station recommends this plan of packing. First, place an excelsior pad in the bottom of each compartment of the crate. Directly upon this pad place a filler and fill with eggs as usual, packing the eggs small end down. If no flat is placed over the pads, the eggs will bed themselves in the excelsior and ride safely. Three layers should be packed as usual, alternating flat and filler, with an excelsior pad instead of a flat on top of the third layer. Continue to fill the crate, using filler, flat and filler. On the top use an excelsior pad with no flat.

Pullets in Quarters

The reason some pullets are late in laying in the fall is because they get started wrong in their winter quarters.

Pullets should be established in their winter quarters before the egg organs are developed; otherwise a change of house disturbs them and interrupts the egg yield.

Separate Late Molters

Late molting hens should be separated from the pullets about ready to lay. These hens have performed well and now need plenty of fattening feed to build them up ready for early spring laying. Eggs from these hens will be valuable for hatching and should be reserved for that purpose.

Sell Old Hens Early

Pullets make the most profitable layers. Hens are always a good price if sold just before the breeding season is over, but they drop fast when farmers are selling their stock after they drop down in production. Eggs at this season are low in price, and it will pay to sell two or three weeks before they stop laying rather than risk a sudden slump in price. Feed heavily of corn for a week or ten days before you sell, and keep off feed runs.

COMEDIANS TO CLIMB FILM LADDER.

JOE WEBER & LEW FIELDS

Joe Weber and Lew Fields, famous old comedians, have been reunited again, this time in Los Angeles, where they are to essay to climb the ladder of film fame. Their first production will be "Friendly Enemies," their old stage success. Lucille Lee Stewart, sister of Anita Stewart, will be their leading lady. Other film adaptations of their old-time stage successes are to follow.

Look In Your Mirror In Ten Days

You would not deliberately choose to look 10 or 15 years older than you are. You would not prefer hollow cheeks, unlighty skin, faded eyes, baby repellent flesh and the stooped shoulders of weakness and weariness. You don't like to be shrunken, neglected and ignored because you have no animation, magnetism, vitality or physical beauty.

But you say you can't help it. You can help it. BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL and IRON now supplied in pleasant tablet form will aid wonderfully in restoring youthful strength and nerve force, building vitality and firm well rounded flesh.

OUTLAW STEER,
SPREADS TERROR,
FINALLY KILLED*Animal Is Shot After Running Amuck for Three Weeks.

Baltimore, Md.—This is the story of a Texas steer, wild by nature and enraged by environment, that for three weeks conducted a reign of terror in its own way over the western stretches of Baltimore county.

The encounter in which the wild roamer of the plains was subdued marked the close of a campaign in which irate farmers, adventure-seeking hunters and plain home protectors did battle frequently with the itinerant steer, only to flee for their lives.

The Texas terror escaped from his keepers three weeks ago while he was being unloaded from a car, along with other cattle, at the stock yards, near Wilkens avenue. He was rearing to go and went.

Over an eight-foot fence he vaulted and thence away to the grounds of St. Mary's Industrial school. Ten men followed him, bent on a speedy capture. Instead, however, all were driven to the tops of convenient trees and the driver fled to pleasanter fields.

Quickly Routed.

A week later the animal turned up on the Sauter farm, five miles away. He first was seen by two of Mr. Sauter's sons. They thought to ensnare the roving beast without difficulty, but, like their predecessors in the chase, were routed summarily.

Next the Texas battler was sighted in the forest reserve north of Elliott

Four-Headed Cabbage

Grown in Middletown

Middletown, N. Y. — Single-stalked cabbage with four heads has been produced by T. F. Welsh of this city. None of the heads are less than six inches in diameter and they all taste like cabbage.

Walsh says he expects to revolutionize cabbage-growing by his discovery, and hopes that his hydra-headed product will reduce the price of vegetables throughout the world.

FALL 55 FEET IN DEATH GRAPPLE*Man Killed When He and Wife Plunge Off Porch.

Chicago.—Locked in a furious clinch, Andrew Zajac, forty-four, and his wife, Rose, forty-four, crashed through the railing of a rear porch of their third-floor flat at 1429 Emma street and fell 55 feet to a cement passageway.

Zajac was killed—his neck broken and skull fractured.

Mrs. Zajac suffered a broken neck, a fracture of the skull, a broken shoulder and other injuries.

She is dying at the Bridewell hospital.

The fight had started, Mrs. Zajac told officers before she sank into a coma, over her Sunday morning efforts to upbraid her husband for a Saturday night liquor party.

The argument began at the breakfast table, and Zajac left, apparently to go to work.

He returned about 10, a little under the influence of liquor, and the quarrel was resumed.

Mrs. Zajac struck her husband in the face, and he retaliated by slapping her.

"I'll kill you!" the woman cried.

Their two sons—Frank, nine, and John, fourteen—saw them away about in the flat and finally out upon the porch.

The woman, muscular and athletic, gripped her husband about the throat and pushed him backward over the railing.

He was clutching her throat and kicking at her.

With an echoing crash the railing gave way and they plunged down, each still clinging to the other.

Indian Boy Tortured; Suspected of Sorcery

Vancouver, B. C.—A weird tale of witchcraft, torture and murder came over the wires from Faraway Telegraph Creek.

It was a message from a Royal Canadian mounted policeman announcing that after trekking for a year through northern British Columbia he was returning to civilization with an aged Indian squaw and four accomplices who killed a young brave by inches because his "sorcery" brought the wrath of the evil spirits upon his tribesmen.

Atol Mocassin was the victim's name. The name of the squaw charged with his murder was not contained in the policeman's dispatch. There was only a brief account of the crime.

A year ago, the message said, hunting suddenly became very poor among the Indians of the northern wilderness. A long, cold winter followed and starvation, disease and death cut swaths in the ranks of the tribesmen.

The superstition of their religion taught the Indians that some one of their number, some sorcerer or maker of "bad medicine" whose witchcraft invoked the wrath of the evil spirits, had brought calamity upon the tribe. Suspicion fell upon the youth Atol.

Led by the aged squaw, the tribesmen invaded his shack at night, found him mumbling strange words over his fire and laid hands on him. They tied him to a sapling, head downward, and let him hang for days, slowly dying.

At length the aged woman grew impatient that Atol died so slowly, according to the policeman's telegraphed account, and so she cut his throat with a hunting knife.

Over the trails, from camp to camp, the story filtered through to the mounted police and one of its members set forth to bring the slayers to justice.

Sorrow's Consecration

He Was Rearing to Go, and Went.

City. A number of persons were reported to have run for their lives after they sought to interfere with the animal.

Recently the steer again came back to the Sauter farm. This time the owners of the steer were notified of the animal's reappearance and asked to send a butcher. Henry Fiescher and his three assistants, all armed, were dispatched to the farm.

Fiescher fired at the beast from behind a tree and the bullet grazed its spine. The steer snorted and charged at the man, sending him to cover. Three or four subsequent shots fired from ambush brought the steer to the ground. Fiescher approached the animal and tried to continue the fight, although unable to rise to its feet. A final shot at close range was necessary to end its life.

Clothes Burned Off
by Bolt; Girl Lives

Langdon, Minn.—Bolt squarely on the top of the head by a bolt of lightning, her undergarments torn to shreds, her outer garments burned, her shoes riddled, her body scarred, and the metal pins in her hair melted, was the experience of Miss Alda Moe, daughter of Peter Moe, a farmer. Physicians say the girl will live, and will suffer no permanent injuries.

In company with a girl friend, Miss Moe started home from school in a severe electrical storm. Both Miss Moe and her companion were made unconscious by the lightning bolt, but the latter quickly recovered. She found her companion's clothing blown, and managed to beat out the flames, meanwhile calling for help. The girl was taken to her home, where she is being treated.

U. S. Engineers Start to Rebuild Bridges in Japan

Tokyo.—An American company has obtained the contract for two of the most important pieces of engineering in the Tokyo reconstruction program. The Foundation company of New York will build the foundations for two bridges over the Sumida river, which will replace those destroyed in the earthquake of 1923. These are the Hibi and Kiyom bridges. The contract amounts to $2,000,000. It calls for the foundations to start 30 feet under water, work being done by the compressed air diving system.

L. B. Craft and N. Englander, New York engineers, are in Tokyo to superintend the work, which is expected to take about three years. Japanese engineers estimate that with their methods it would require six years.

TO USHER IN THE NEW YEAR.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

While many gowns continue to dodge the waistline issue and refuse to establish one at all, among the new dance frocks there are those which have a bright velvet or fallie ribbon, more or less at the natural waistline and bowed, front, back or side. The ribbon contrasts rather than matches the gown, but, of course, matches the flower.

One charming pastel blue chiffon had a dull pink velvet ribbon around the waist, and a rose of this hue perched on the shoulder; the dress was without a waistline of its own—one simply being simulated by the ribbon—and ended with two circular ruffles.

FOE OF BAD MEN KILLED BY DRUNK

Famous Oklahoma Marshal Brought Scores of Bandits to Justice.

Oklahoma City—Hundred of times during his 51 years as arch-foe of the lawless element in Oklahoma "Bill" Tilghman faced the blazing guns of bank bandits, train robbers, murderers, cattle rustlers and similar gentry, giving bullet for bullet and almost invariably bringing in his man. A dozen, perhaps fifteen, criminals met death at his hands; dozens were "winged" by his unerring fire; scores of proved bad men surrendered without a shot rather than face his marksmanship.

And then, at ten o'clock on the night of November 1 a small touring car, bearing two men and two women, careened down the principal street of Cromwell, blackest spot in Oklahoma's oil fields, and came to a stop in front of "Ma" Murphy's dance hall. One of the men stepped to the ground, drew a revolver and fired down the street, apparently without a target. He was unsteady in his gait, witnesses said, from liquor.

Tilghman then marshal of Cromwell, at $500 a month, the highest salary ever paid a peace officer in Oklahoma, stepped from the dance hall to quell the new disturbance. He grappled with the offender and snatched away his gun, never attempting to draw his own weapon. The disturber, however, whipped out a second revolver, fired three shots into the body of the officer, leaped into his car and sped away.

How Tilghman Met End.
Half of Cromwell gave chase. The other half stayed to help Tilghman, but in 15 minutes the dean of Oklahoma's law enforcers, relentless terror of the criminal element and friend and idol of children, was dead, "with his boots on."

Wylie Linn, a federal prohibition officer, was arrested soon afterward and confessed to the shooting. His companions also were captured. Linn will face trial for first degree murder.

With Tilghman's death passed the last and great of Oklahoma's pioneer peace officers whose lives have been given entirely to the war against crime within the confines of Oklahoma. Indian scout, platoon leader, United States marshal, state senator, who put much of the "power" into Oklahoma's criminal code, sheriff and one-time chief of police of Oklahoma City, he led a life more thrilling than many lesser lights, whose names have become household words. For Tilghman withal was extremely modest, quiet spoken and sparing of words, always willing to discuss horses and farming, but never willing to discuss himself. Exploits of Al Jennings, whose gang of train robbers Tilghman broke up; of "Bud" Bailey, two-gun sheriff of Carter county, who fell before the fire of a Texas ranger; Frank M. Canton, the man who did the most to wipe out cattle rustling in the Southwest and whose gun many times spoke death to desperadoes, pale into mediocrity beside the daring performance of "Uncle Bill."

Tilghman put Al Jennings into the penitentiary and drove his gang to the four winds. He broke up the Dalton band and was in the front rank when the pitched battle was fought that resulted in the death of most of the Dalton cohorts. He disrupted the Henry Starr band of bank robbers, putting four in the penitentiary, and was on his way to capture Starr himself when the notorious bandit was slain by an Arkansas bank president during a holdup. He brought to justice every member of the Doolin band who was not killed in battle by peace officers. He converted Dodge City, Kan., the wildest, widest-open, most murderous town in the world, into a virtual Sunday school in three years, and there earned his reputation as the deadliest and the most daring man in the Southwest.

Showed No Fear of Death.
Frequently Tilghman's exploits border on the footbrandy. Once, when trailing the Doolin gang of train and bank bandits, he led his posse to within half a mile of their camp. He left his men behind while he went ahead to reconnoiter, and, misjudging the strength of the robber band, undertook to make the capture single-handed. He succeeded in reaching the cowboys' bar in which they were spending the night, but when he stepped through the door he looked into the muzzle of rifles leveled at him from six benches. Another second and his career would have been ended, for here were men for all of whom a name waited. But Doolin, the leader, however, leaped to the floor with a command to his men not to shoot, and in a split second Tilghman was out of the door and gone. He led his posse back, but of course the bandits had departed hastily, and in a long-range, running rifle battle next day one of the Doolin gang was killed.

Seven years later Tilghman, out of gratitude to Doolin, risked his own life to capture Doolin alive rather than kill him. He trailed Doolin into Arkansas, managed to secure himself in the robber's room of a hotel, and when Doolin entered greeted him with drawn revolver. Doolin had sworn he never would be captured alive, and watched out his own gun. Tilghman shot it from his hand, took Doolin back to Oklahoma to be hanged, and personally saw that all of Doolin's effects and money were turned over to his widow and child.

At another time Tilghman surprised a gang of cattle rustlers, captured them by a ruse that they were surrounded by a large posse of cowboys, and captured the entire band without firing a shot. Men were never more shocked than they when they discovered how they had been taken in, and they paid the cost of their own capture.

that Tilghman liked to tell about. He regarded it as a huge joke. When trouble came Tilghman never waited for aid. He was in a tiny prairie town one day looking for a murderer, when three horsemen swept down on the town bank and held it up. Tilghman saw the commotion a block away, ran to the scene and engaged the three in a pistol battle, killed one, wounded one and killed the third one's horse as he tried to escape. The wounded man recovered, and he and his companion went to the penitentiary. The town marshal never put in an appearance during the melee.

Succeeded in Desperate Missions.
Three Presidents of the United States and every governor of Oklahoma except one at some time called on Tilghman for special duty. It always was some desperate mission, and never did Tilghman fail to bring in his man, alive if possible, but dead if necessary. At one time President Roosevelt sent him into Mexico for a murderer. Tilghman penetrated 600 miles into the southern republic, got his man and brought him back to the United States. Mexico never even protested officially.

No less spectacular than his war on criminals was Tilghman's service against the Indians during the 70's. He was only twenty years old when he first saw service in the Cheyenne and Arapahoe war in 1874, and he also fought through the campaign of 1875 when Dull Knife and his followers left the reservation at Fort Sill and plundered the frontiers of Kansas and Nebraska. Tilghman's home and all his possessions were burned by the marauders, and the memory of it made him a little truer and his zest for the fight a little keener. Some of his experiences during the Indian wars have been made the basis of novels, for it was he who rode 75 miles through an Indian-infested country for troops and led them to the relief of a beleaguered settlement. The cavalry actually arrived in the nick of time, for the log blockhouse was in flames, half of the defenders were dead and the Indians were forming for a final rush when the troops swept down on them. Only a remnant of the Indian band escaped, and Tilghman tracked them for days until they finally eluded him.

At another time Tilghman and two brother scouts were surprised by a roving band of red marauders and for forty-eight hours fought off attack after attack. Their dead horses served as breastworks. Unable to break through the deadly fire of the scouts and fearing to tarry long enough to starve them out, the Indians withdrew, leaving behind a dozen dead. One of the scouts was killed and Tilghman and his companions were slightly wounded. They buried their comrades, "outsmaned" the Indians by stealing two ponies from them during the night and reached safety.

Never Sacrificed Life.
Aside from his Indian wars, it was said of Tilghman that he never took a human life unless it was necessary to save his own. Scores of times brother officers rebuked him for placing his life and theirs in jeopardy because of his unwillingness to "shoot on sight," yet they never could influence him. But he was relentless in his task and never abandoned the chase until his man was dead or in prison, even though he might be compelled to turn his attention elsewhere for the time being.

"Uncle Bill" Tilghman's death cast a pall over Oklahoma. Split by the bitterest political fight in its history, the state forgot its hatreds when the news of his murder was flashed, and from all factions arose a tribute to the dean of Oklahoma peace officers, the man who met and conquered more "bad men" than any two officers in the Southwest—and perhaps in the world—the man whose mere presence in town enabled women and children to sleep peacefully and caused criminals to seek other fields. A governor, two former governors, a United States senator, ministers, widows of men whose murderers he had brought to justice and men in all walks of life joined in doing honor to him and in pouring a flood of condolences on the widow.

And the children?
"He'll be missed by all the boys in the neighborhood," his widow says. "They all knew him and liked him, and he always had time to listen to their troubles, share their joys, advise them, show them why this course or that was right, point out the folly of unfairness or dishonesty and help them if they were in trouble. He really was glad, I believe, to persuade a boy to do the manly thing than to catch a murderer."

"I have sat by my window and heard groups of boys go by, discussing some proposal bravely. If one remarked, 'Well, Uncle Billy would do so and so' that settled it. They did as Uncle Billy would do."—New York Herald-Tribune.

Haynes had refused a permit to a Philadelphia brewing company, which brought suit against him.

BISHOP LLOYD TALKS ABOUT NEW CATHEDRAL

The congregation at St. John's Church Sunday morning was privileged to hear Bishop Lloyd, the senior Suffragan Bishop of New York diocese, speak on "The Cathedral of St. John, the Divine." But while that was the ostensible subject of his inspiring talk, its broadest significance was what the cathedral soon to be completed stands for in the life of the community; faith in God and the wish and purpose to build for Him a house worthy of His name.

Already New York city surpasses all other cities in its marvelous temples to whatever stands for material advantage; soon there will stand upon an eminence overlooking New York city, one of the most beautiful, most perfect, most satisfying cathedrals in the world. It is to be built by all of the people of the whole diocese and community, where the widow's mite will be welcomed side by side with the millionaire's wealth. Bishop Lloyd warned those who should go about securing funds, not to be impertinent in telling any man or woman what they should give, remembering that Christ was a gentleman always, but urging them rather to show their brethren wherein they can honor themselves by having a part in this mighty Christian enterprise.

Bishop Lloyd paid high tribute to Bishop Manning for the courage he had shown in shouldering the mighty task of completing the cathedral and in such a spirit as to assure the solid backing of all Christian people today, especially of the Diocese of New York.

A Supper Dish The Family Will Like

MACARONI AU GRATIN IS EASY TO MAKE

It may be more fun to cook fudge and tummy desserts, but if you can cook the everyday foods so that the family call for more—that is a real accomplishment. It means that you are a good cook. Now supper dishes are always in demand because it is often hard to think of something that can be prepared quickly.

Here is the recipe for Macaroni au Gratin. This might really be called Macaroni and Dried Beef but anything baked with crumbs on top can be called au gratin, meaning baked with crumbs.

1 cup macaroni
2 cups boiling water
2 teaspoonful salt
1 cup dried beef

For White Sauce
2 cups milk
4 tablespoonfuls butter
4 tablespoonfuls flour
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper

will be at the same time hearty enough for father and yet not be too heavy for the little folks. Macaroni au Gratin, is especially good for supper because it is hot and filling and very nourishing. It can be prepared very quickly and easily. Here are the directions:

Use at least eight times as much water as macaroni and two teaspoonfuls of salt for every cup of macaroni. With these proportions you can cook any amount large or small. The macaroni swells a great deal in cooking and if a small amount of water is used the macaroni will be pasty. Add the salt to the water and have the water at a jumping boil when the macaroni is added. Keep the water boiling during the cooking, and cook until tender when pierced with a fork but not soft and mushy. Drain in a coarse strainer.

Break macaroni into pieces about an inch and a half in length, and measure out a cupful. Add the salt to the boiling water. When water is boiling rapidly add macaroni, and boil until tender; then drain.

While macaroni is cooking make a white sauce. Melt the butter, add the flour and make a smooth paste. Then add the milk gradually and cook stirring constantly until it is thick and smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. If the dried beef is very salty it may be necessary to use less salt in the white sauce. Tear up the dried beef into small pieces and add it to the white sauce.

Butter a large baking dish and place a layer of macaroni in it. Cover this with a layer of the dried beef and white sauce, then add alternate layers of macaroni and sauce until all is used. Cover the top with a layer of buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven (250 degrees F.) until brown. This will take about 15 to 20 minutes. For the buttered bread crumbs—melt butter in a frying pan; add the crumbs and stir until brown. The proportion to use is 2 tablespoonfuls butter to 1 cup crumbs, or you may use more butter if you wish.

This recipe makes a good sized baking dish full, enough to serve six or eight people.

You can use the same recipe with almost anything. If you have some left over beef or ham or any kind of meat, or fish you could use that in place of the dried beef. Or you can melt some cheese in the white sauce and have "Macaroni and Cheese."

Raid House in Town of Ulster

Sheriff and State Troopers Gather in Three Occupants—Frank Bruno Held for Grand Jury—Two Women Fined.

Saturday night about 11:45 o'clock, a posse in charge of Sheriff Herman Wells descended upon the house formerly occupied by Ira Hasbrouck, back of Albany avenue extension, in the town of Ulster, arresting Frank Bruno who lives there on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, and two young women on a charge of being disorderly persons. Five men were also in the house and their names were taken.

The party went in two touring cars and besides Sheriff Wells included Undersheriff Haulenbeck, Deputy Seth Jocelyn, Sergeant James Cunningham, Corporal Alsdorf and State Trooper Kelly. The house had been complained of and had been under surveillance for about a week. District Attorney F. G. Traver secured the necessary evidence and arranged for the raid.

Bruno and the women were taken to Flatbush and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Walter Webber. The women were fined $10 each while Bruno was held to await the action of the grand jury. Early Sunday morning he was released from custody after furnishing bail in $1,000 to insure his appearance when wanted.

A small quantity of wine was seized and a revolver said to belong to Bruno confiscated. The woman, who gave their names as Cassie Gardner and Elizabeth Dinalco, said they had come from Albany. Bruno's bondsmen are Dominico Grecco and Frank Guadagnoli.

Blaze Threatens Coney Island

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 29.—Fanned by a high wind blowing from the ocean, a fire starting in a bathhouse this afternoon threatened historic Coney Island. A call for all the fire apparatus in the borough of Brooklyn was sent in at 1:38 o'clock.

The fire was reported to have started in the Seaciff bath on the boardwalk. It spread rapidly to the highly inflammable, frame structures of four other baths.

The flames, origin undetermined, were discovered by a policeman patrolling the boardwalk. Two alarms were sent in followed by two more alarms and then came the "borough call."

Police reserves from the Coney Island station were called out to aid the firemen.

Half an hour after the blaze was discovered five blocks along the boardwalk had been burned.

The flames were visible over a wide area and Brooklynites mounted the roofs of their houses to view the spectacle.

Titular Bout at Garden Friday

Kaplan and Kramer, Survivors of Elimination Tournament, Will Battle For Featherweight Honors Lightweight Division Next.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 29.—The first new boxing champion of 1925 will be mounted on the featherweight pedestal next Friday night at Madison Square Garden when the elimination tournament survivors, Kid Kaplan and Danny Kramer, come to grips in a 15 round struggle for the title vacated by Johnny Dundee.

This is the culmination of the first personally conducted drive on inactive champions by the New York State Athletic Commission, but it will not be the last. The success of the featherweight tournament will encourage the commission to force action in the lightweight division, though a showdown there may be accomplished along different lines. The best lightweights have been quite active recently and now Sid Terris and Sammy Mandell are accepted as Benny Leonard's closest challengers. There are others—Tommy O'Brien and Sid Barbarian among them—who can claim a certain distinction. However the situation, as generally accepted, is that a bout between Terris and Mandell will produce a challenger Leonard will be forced to recognize.

The boxing commission will then take steps to make this match or compel Leonard to acknowledge his inability to make weight and resign the championship.

World Tennis Domination Won By Americans

World domination in lawn tennis settled even more firmly in the United States during the year of 1924, the Davis Cup remaining almost as a matter of formality, and what was deemed to be a second class American team, minus Tilden and Johnston, scoring an absolute clean-up in the Olympic Games at Paris.

Starting the season Vincent Richards and Helen Willis, two sprightly youngsters, sailed abroad, and each won three Olympic titles, the United States taking all six competitions on the program. Suzanne of the tournament declined to be a party to the proceedings; in fact, she played no tennis at all during the season.

"Little Poker Face" was a finalist at Wimbledon, but lost to Miss McKane, of England, before she became acclimated. Helen, however, won the Olympic title easily, as did Richards; then they teamed up and absorbed the mixed doubles event. Subsequently Richards paired with Francis Hunter to win the men's doubles, and Helen turned around and captured the women's event, in collaboration with Mrs. George W. Wightman.

Richards also lost at Wimbledon, but suffered no reverses of consequence thereafter. He was honored for the first time by being placed on the Davis Cup singles team with Tilden, and this pair won all four matches in straight sets from Patterson and Anderson of Australia, in the challenge round. Tilden and Johnston likewise gained a straight-set decision over the Australians in the doubles.

Tilden, of course, retained his title of American singles champion, and Miss Willis remained at the top in the women's group.

Other American champions of the year were: National doubles, Howard and Robert Kinsey; women's doubles, Miss Willis and Mrs. Wightman; mixed doubles, Miss Willis and Richards; veterans' singles, Craig Biddle; veterans' doubles, Walter Pate and Sam Hardy; girls' singles, Helen Jacobs; father and son doubles, A. Chapin and son; Intercollegiate singles, Walter Scott, Seattle; doubles, Wright and Thalheimer, Texas University; municipal singles, Ted Drewes, St. Louis; doubles, Holman and Ragan.

Early in the year, the foundations of the tennis world were rocked by the passage of the player-writer rule by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The rule provided that players writing for newspapers and periodicals must relinquish this source of revenue by the first of the present year under pain of losing their amateur standing. Tilden and Richards are two of the men affected by the rule, but the belief is general that it will be either rescinded or modified at the next annual meeting.

Hornsby Set A New Record

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 29.—For the fifth year in succession, Rogers Hornsby, swatting duke of the St. Louis Cardinals, leads the batters of the National League with an average of .423 for 145 games, the highest percentage reached by a player since 1897 when "Wee Willie" Keeler hit .432.

The previous record for successive batting laurels in the National League was held by Hans Wagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who led the circuit four times successively.

Hornsby led Zach Wheat, of Brooklyn, second highest man in the batting averages by almost fifty points.

Hornsby's Record.

Year	G.	AB.	H.	Pct.
1920	149	559	218	.376
1921	154	592	235	.397
1922	154	623	259	.491
1923	107	424	163	.384
1924	143	526	227	.423

Totals . . . 707 2764 1093 .393

Leaders in the various departments of play are as follows: In batting, Hornsby of St. Louis gets the honors with a mark of .423, the highest percentage a player has reached since Willie Keeler hit .432 in 1897 for Brooklyn. Hornsby made the most bases, 227; hit for the most total bases, 227; and tied with Frank Frisch of New York for scoring most runs.

Fourner of Brooklyn and Glenn Wright of Pittsburgh are the only players in the league who did not make a single contact that their clubs played. Fourner led the league in home runs, with 27.

Zach Wheat of Brooklyn collected the most singles, 149, while the three-base hit leader is Ed Roedel of Cincinnati, with 21; the sacrifice leader, Ralph Pinell of Cincinnati, with 23, and the base stealing leader, Max Carey of Pittsburgh, with 43.

BERENBAUGH OUT FOR LIGHT HEAVY HONORS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 29.—"Sack 'em" Paul Berenbaugh, of Astoria, L. I., who knocked out Larry Estridge a few nights ago, is in the fighting market for a world's light-heavyweight championship. Dan Hickler, manager for Berenbaugh, announced today.

Realization that he had outgrown the middleweight division dawned upon Berenbaugh when he entered the ring against Estridge, weighing 160 lb. in the peak of condition, according to Hickler.

As Pinch Hitter and Umpire in One Game

Anything is apt to happen in baseball, so here's a new one: When Umpire Casey was laid up in Salt Lake last season, Jack Carroll, his working mate, selected a visiting player to work on the bases. Harry Hannah, Vernon catcher, was chosen the bare umpire this day.

The game tightened up and in the ninth inning Manager Esch saw a chance to win it with a hit. He stroked his hair, scanned the bench, and finally decided upon Hannah as the pinch hitter.

Harry grounded out, but nevertheless the fans present saw the spectacle of a deputized umpire trying to win the game for Vernon.

CHAMP DEMPSEY TOO WISE TO QUIT GAME

Hint That He Will Retire Not Taken Seriously.

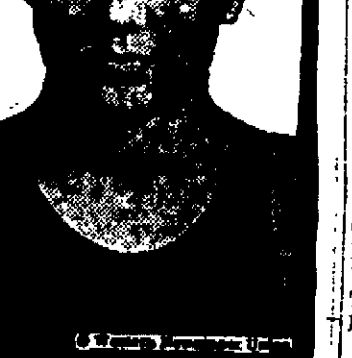

The hint that Jack Dempsey will retire within the next year without again donning the gloves is not taken seriously either by the experts or his intimate friends.

Dempsey is too good a business man to throw away $250,000. It is almost a cinch that he would get that much for stepping into a ring with a worthy opponent.

Dempsey's intimation that he would like to share with Jack McAuliffe the honor of being an unbeaten champion sounds very pretty, but doesn't mean anything. When McAuliffe retired the promoters were not hanging up fabulous purses.

Most all the champions prattle about retiring undefeated. Jim Jeffries retired, but came back to take in a purse of $101,000 and a terrible lacing from Jack Johnson.

Johnny Kilbane talked of retiring. The Cleveland featherweight even went so far as to pick out a potential successor in the person of Jack Wolfe. Then along came a promoter and offered him $60,000 cash money to take on Danny Frush of Baltimore. Kilbane accepted so speedily the promoter's head started to swim.

Dempsey may retire, but he will have his fingers crossed. A "retired champion" is always interesting. The bugs insist on comparing him with the current notables. This makes the "retired champion" a very valuable box office attraction.

Dempsey at least realizes that his talk of "retiring" is doing him no harm and may be doing him a lot of good.

Like all other champions, Dempsey will "retire" when a solemn-faced gent in white lambs stands over him and counts him out.

Some Interesting Data on World Series Titles

There have been eight managers who have won world series championship titles without ever having been defeated in a big series, but of the eight, William Carrigan of the Boston Red Sox is the only one to win more than one, and he has two to his credit. Those who have won one without losing are J. J. Collins, Garland Stahl, R. G. Barron, all of the Red Sox; F. H. Jones and C. W. Rowland of the Chicago White Sox; G. T. Stallings of the Boston Braves and Tristram Speaker of the Cleveland Indians. There have been four who have lost series without winning any. They are Fred Mitchell of the Chicago Cubs and William Gleason of the Chicago White Sox, each having lost one; Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Nationals, who has lost two, and Hugh Jennings of the Detroit Americans, who has lost three.

Breeder's Out of Luck

It is a remarkable circumstance that while seven of the eight trotters that have recorded a mile in 2:00 in light harness contests made their best records at Lexington, Ky., not one Kentucky breeder has produced a 2:00 trotter. It is true several of them were failed there, but northern horse trainers were in such business responsible for their production. The blood elements of the 2:00 trotters are very interesting and significant. In the direct male line all of them trace back to Maryland's Hambletonian, progenitor of nearly all present day trotters.

Kingston Wins Championship For First Half

Of Metropolitan League, the Honors of Greenpoint's Defeat at Paterson—Morgenvoekers Have Envious Court Record.

SUCCESSFUL MANAGER.

Frank Morgenvoek's Kingston basketball team is the winner of the first half pennant race of the Metropolitan League, with a percentage of .650.

Greenpoint finished with a percentage of .600. The local representative came into the honors, following the defeat of Greenpoint at the hands of Paterson at the latter's court Saturday evening. The final score was 31 to 27.

The score:

	FG.	FP.	Tot.
Borgman	3	9	15
Powers	0	3	3
Dieghan	2	3	7
Harvey	0	1	1
Kennedy	1	3	5

Score at half time—Greenpoint, 17; Paterson, 17. Referee—Turner.

Wins Sunday's Game.

On Sunday evening when the Greenpoint and Paterson teams engaged in another struggle at the Greenpoint court, the home club won 45 to 25. Following is the final standing:

	FG.	FP.	Tot.
Kingston	13	7	.650
Greenpoint	12	8	.600
Brooklyn	10	10	.500
Yonkers	8	10	.444
Trenton	8	11	.421
Paterson	7	12	.368

A Splendid Record.

The local basketball tossers deserve much credit for pulling out at the head of the list, after getting off to a bad start. The trying out of new players was costly in the early stages and a number of home games were lost on this account. The locals had a much better record for games on the travel than at home.

In the ten leading scorers of the league Carl Husta is in second place, and Riconda and Powers hold places. Three men of the same club included in this list is also an honor for the locals.

Besides winning the first half championship of the Metropolitan League the local team can boast of having the edge on the Original Celtics, although the series is not yet ended. In a number of exhibition games throughout the state the Morgenvoekers have displayed their ability by turning in wins.

Poughkeepsie At St. Peter's

"Swat" Russell Will Play With Washington Five Against Saints Tonight—First Game Between Juniors and Wilbur Team.

At the weekly game this evening at the St. Peter's Lyceum court the Washington basketball team of Poughkeepsie will be the attraction in the main event. In the preliminary game the Wilbur Independents will tackle the St. Peter's Junior quintet.

A player well known to local basketball fandom will appear, with the Poughkeepsie outfit in the person of "Swat" Russell. Russell's basketball playing is well known here, but in basketball maneuvers not so well. Russell is a veteran of the court, having played in and around Poughkeepsie for a number of years, where he holds a good reputation. The visiting club is said to be a strong combination and a fast contest is expected.

Sure to Succeed

Original men are not content to be governed by tradition; they think for themselves, and the result is that they succeed where others fail. Now, a certain photographer never says in a woman customer, "Look pleasant, medium, if you please." He knows a female industry better than that.

In the most natural manner in the world he remarks: "It is unnecessary to ask you to look pleasant; I am sure you could not look otherwise."

Then click goes the camera and the result is never in doubt.—Philadelphia Ledger.
